

DISPOSITION - WHAT IS IT?

Disposition is typically the final phase of a corporate facility or asset's life. The decommissioning of assets involves removal and disposition from financial and corporate physical control and often is accomplished through one of the following methods:

- Recycling
- Selling/Brokerage
- Charitable Donations
- Liquidation

A corporate disposition program can improve overall facility and asset performance by:

- Lowering disposal and decommissioning costs
- Eliminating hurdles to closure and disposal
- Encouraging the repurposing of assets to other corporate locations
- Bringing big-picture perspective, providing visibility both internally and externally

PROGRAM AREAS

Disposition Research & Support
Coordination of Asset Removal
Technology Field Services
Asset Disposition Reporting

OMNI SUPPORT SERVICES

Omni can provide support for facility and asset disposition projects in a variety of service methods. Our experience with the overall disposal process can help corporations identify facility asset disposition issues and provide real tangible, cost effective solutions.

We can assist in the analysis of options available for the ultimate retirement and disposition of furniture assets and deliver solutions applicable to disposition projects across an enterprise facility program.

We specialize in the asset disposition support of office furniture, fixtures and equipment.

